

Review of: "Exchange Rate Pass-Through and Inflation on Unemployment in Nigeria"

Shah Husain¹

¹ National Institute of Technology, Hamirpur

Potential competing interests: The paper should be accepted for publication after making the suggested revision.

This study investigates the dynamic relationship between exchange rate fluctuations, inflation, and unemployment in Nigeria from 1986 to 2022. The topic is relevant and in line with the scope of the journal. I suggest the following revisions to improve the quality of the paper:

Abstract: I suggest authors to rewrite the abstract to make it more constructive. The abstract should have at least one sentence per each: context and background, motivation, hypothesis, methods, results, and conclusions.

1) The introduction part of the study needs improvement and story flow and authors need to give proper contributions to their study.

2) I noticed that the novelty of this paper is not described in detail. This should be put in the introduction sections properly.

3) There is a need to do a more rigorous and systematic literature review. The authors should clearly mention the literature gap

4) The authors have only presented the findings, with no explanation of their economic reasoning. Do these findings validate or disprove the current policy framework? Are any new policy measures planned as a result of the findings? Discussion of the findings, which is conspicuously absent here, is meant to spark debate on policy. If the results don't offer anything new in terms of theory or policy, then a simple comparison with the literature won't prove their originality.