Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The title is too long; it should be reduced to about 10 to 15 words.

The abstract should be about 250 words. Problematics, objectives, and main findings are expected there.

The key words and the title should not contain the same words.

The introduction should clearly express the objectives of the study as a set of the problematic.

The theoretical review is sufficient.

The research method will be great if the study zone is precise: is it all of Indonesia or only Aceh?

Explain how the qualitative data collected was processed to arrive at the findings.

The chapters of the article would be better rearranged following the standard IMMRED: Introduction, Materials and Methods, Results and Discussion. Finally, the conclusion.

It should be aligned with this standard before it is published.
