Despite the innovative and highly significant nature of the topic in education as a whole, the following observations should be taken into consideration:

1. The title of the abstract should reflect the objective proposed by the researchers.
2. Improvements in the language used are necessary to make the article publishable.
3. While it is mentioned that an extensive literature review was conducted, it is not reflected in practice.
4. Specify the educational institution where the research instruments were applied and how the sample (350 teachers) was selected.
5. A discussion of the results is needed to better present the research conclusions.
