

Review of: "Theorizing the Normalization of Plantation Agriculture in Colombia"

Luis Rubén Pérez Pinzón¹

¹ Universidad Autónoma de Bucaramanga

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Great job!

My recommendations

The title must specify that it is a case study because the proposal is for an exceptional (extraordinary) case of plantation.

The plantation concept does not correspond to the recent history of Colombia nor to the productive distribution of Colombia as is mentioned in section 4.1.

However, the theoretical proposal turns out to be novel for the proposed case. However, it is not possible to "normalize" when in Colombia there is a complex social, cultural and even productive diversity from the Hass avocado producing regions. Case happened in Salamina cannot be replicated for the rest of Colombia.