The authors made a good effort to understand the overweight/obesity scenario among Nigerian married women and this work will be helpful to others. The following specific comments may be addressed to improve the manuscript.

1. What is the logic behind taking the hypothesis 'the Southern region will have a higher burden of overnutrition compared to the Northern region'? It needs to be clarified in the last paragraph of the Introduction Section.
2. It would be better to represent the spatial variation of overweight/obesity among Nigerian women by a map, which will be more informative and understandable to any reader.
3. The manuscript could be more interesting if you give more insights about the variations existing between northern and southern regions in terms of overweight/obesity.
