Many thanks for inviting me to review this valuable work. This paper is very interesting and written in good scientific language and good structure. Also, it has tackled many important topics, including climate change impacts and water and food security. I can recommend it to be accepted with minor modifications, as the conclusions section needs more elaboration. It is very general and did not mention any numbers or percentages of declination in water and food supply due to climate change and the other stresses; also, it would be great to suggest some recommendations to alleviate the impacts.

My final recommendation:

Accepted with minor modification
