

Review of: "The Disruption of the COVID-19 Pandemic on Farm Produce and its Implications for the Future of Food Security - A review"

Tao Jin¹

¹ Yangzhou University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The impact of the COVID-19 Pandemic on food security is a major global issue. It is also reasonable to take Farm Produce as the perspective of this review.

The main problem of this review is the analysis framework, that is, the logical relationship of each part of the paper. Readers hope to understand the characteristics, causes and countermeasures of the Disruption of the Pandemic on Farm Produce, but it seems that this review has not managed this academic ambition well.

If possible, can the authors reorganize the full text materials according to the causal logic for the following phenomena: the increase of population facing food insecurity, the interruption of fresh agricultural product supply, the change of consumer consumption mode, and the reduction of agricultural labor force, etc.

In addition, international or intercontinental differences such as the extent, causes, and resilience of farm produce impacted by the Pandemic can be compared and analyzed. In this way, targeted suggestions can be made by region type.