I appreciate the chance to review this manuscript. It seems the authors have invested considerable effort. I would like to share some comments:

- The abstract needs rewriting; it should provide a comprehensive overview of the conducted research. However, the current abstract does not follow this structure. For instance, it lacks references to the introduction and the significance of the study. Additionally, the methodology section is not well-written and is incomplete.
- In the introduction section, considerations such as the significance of the study, research gaps, articulation of questions and existing problems, and the necessity of conducting such a study should be addressed. Furthermore, research objectives, and so forth, need to be outlined.
- What has been the basis for identifying the factors influencing the safety and health program?
- The discussion and conclusion are very general.
