

Review of: "The Uluru Statement from the Heart – A consideration from three perspectives"

Ming-Feng Wang

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Comments:

1.This article discusses three interesting topics. First, the author positions himself, affirmatively in relation to the Statement, using a naturalistic philosophical approach. On the one hand, the author brings to bear a framework of conceptual analysis derived from occupational science, utilising the work of Ann Wilcock. On the other hand the author draws upon some of the thoughts concerning Aboriginal worldviews offered by Aboriginal philosopher, Mary Graham.

2.The description of sense of belonging takes a big portion of this article. I suggested that we can discuss doing, being, becoming, belonging, survival and health in a balanced and systematic way, and clarify and detail the relationship between them.

3.This paper is worthy of reflection by all countries, governments and us on the relationship and views between aborigines and post-immigrants in the common territory.