I found this review very stimulating, interesting and thought provoking! The "Article highlights" clearly summarizes the content and gives the reader a stimulus to read through the whole text. The two Figures (1A and 1B) drives the reader clearly through the logic of the authors regarding the complexity of the covid-19 infection and the host's reactions to both the infection and to immunization. I thoroughly enjoyed reading it and am sure, that every colleague interested in these questions will do so too!

The language of the review is easy to understand, which is unfortunately not always the case with topics related to viral immunology. The cited literature (82 !) is impressive and highly useful, if someone would want to have additional information.
