Dear Authors,

I found your research is interesting especially it is related to the transportation application in Bangkok. Congratulate you all to seek reliability results as highly expected. Little note is that please (re)determine an adequate sample size in structural equation modeling can be aided by considering the number of parameters to be estimated. Otherwise, please support your sample method with literature reviews which had been applied the appropriate both numbers. There is very little reliability data result shown in each parameter, therefore please confirm each parameter to increase reliability results. Validity results are also important, however it is very difficult to find such data in your study. Finally, I appreciate your work.
