

Review of: "Efficacy of Anogeissus leiocarpus as a Therapeutic Agent for Some Pathogenic Bacteria"

Sneha Nayak¹

¹ NMAM Institute of Technology

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

the article explains the potential of ethanolic and aqueous extract of Anogeissus Leiocarpus as an potent therapeutic agents against few pathogenic bacteria (Escherichia coli, Streptococcus pneumoniae, Staphylococcus aureus, Pseudomonas aeruginosa, and Klebsiella pneumoniae) . Moreover, it also highlights the proximate and mineral contents analysis as well as radical scavenging activity of this extract. The methodology is well written including all the important methods and the results are promising . Overall the article is of interest which explains the benefits of plant extracts and their secondary metabolites as a potent antibacterial agent.