

Review of: "Professional Learning Communities (PLCs) for English Teachers as an Effective Alternative Framework for Professional Development"

Yael Schwartz¹

¹ Weizmann Institute of Science

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

It is a well-written and interesting paper with lots of insights regarding the benefits of disciplinary PLC's. It describes an evaluation study of PLC's for English teachers in it's forth year.

It lack a theoretical framework that will organize the result in a manner that would allow generalization of the results and maybe a theoretical contribution to the field of professional development of teachers.