In my opinion, the study represents an advance in the knowledge of the factors that promote and enrich the preventive culture of the organization, although I believe that it should go deeper into the analysis of the organizational, management, environmental, and human factors, describing, within each factor, which indicators carry greater weight within the global perception, and also identifying weaknesses in the organization's preventive management.

I also understand that the wording of the document should be improved; there are parts that are difficult to understand.

Finally, I miss mentioning possible biases and limitations present in the study in the opinion of the authors.

Thank you.
