

Review of: "The tumour microenvironment in BRCA1/BRCA2 hereditary breast cancer and the role of epigenetics in its regulation"

Majid M. Mahmood¹

¹ University of Mustansiriyah

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The research is acceptable from a scientific standpoint and included a successful selection of the subject of the problem to be studied due to its societal health importance. The researcher followed sufficient working methods to achieve the desired results. The research produced important and noteworthy results, which the researcher discussed in a comprehensive manner and came to conclusions of scientific importance.