The paper contains sufficiently new and adequate information, and it adheres to the journal's standards. The topic and level of formality are appropriate for the journal's readership. Its style and readability are suitable. There is a huge amount of information given throughout the article, but I would suggest revising the paper.

The literature is poor, and I miss recent relevant literature in this area.

The tables contain too much information and are too long.

I suggest rewriting the conclusion. I miss practical implications. Furthermore, you should also include the limitations.

In summary, the article is sufficiently interesting to warrant publication, but it needs minor revision. Please follow all the comments above.
