Review of: "Leveraging Fine-Tuned Large Language Models in Bioinformatics: A Research Perspective"

Emanuele La Malfa[1]

1 University of Oxford

The article seems rushed, with very few references, concentrated at the beginning, and not-so-in-depth discussion of each issue related to LLMs and bioinformatics. Another point that makes me think that the work necessitates a deeper thought is the reference section, with typos and a wrong layout (a reference is split between two items).