

Review of: "[Essay] The Algorithm; Mind of a Virtual Era – Our Code of Codes"

Simo Sokcevic

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article's level of organisation is commensurate with the essay writing style. In any case, it is pertinent to the most recent research in the field it addresses. The author's familiarity with prior research on the same topic is evident, and she employs the appropriate literature and sources. Generally, concepts, methods, and terminology are employed with precision. The manuscript lacks scientific rigour and analysis depth, but this is not unusual for an essay-style article. The work as a whole can serve as a catalyst for research into the algorithmic self and the impact of artificial intelligence on contemporary human existence.