Review of: "Emotional Intelligence and Cybervictimization: Stratified Multilevel Analysis With Synthetic Data"

Maria Rita Sergi[1]

1 University of Chieti-Pescara

I appreciate the author's effort in writing the study, but the entire paper lacks scientific rigor. Firstly, the introduction does not analyze whether there are meta-analytical studies or reviews investigating the association between cyberbullying and emotional intelligence. It is not clear what the relationship is between the variables under investigation. Therefore, the hypotheses are confusing, and there are no clear objectives. Consequently, the statistical analyses are not consistent with the theoretical framework and aims, the results are messy, and the discussions lack scientific clarity. Furthermore, it has not been specified whether the study was approved by an ethical committee. The formatting of the text and bibliography is incorrect.