This study tries to review the impact of using TikTok by the Students. Although the result of this novel research may have a lot of advantages for educators in the field of education, I think the following suggestions may help the author improve his/her work.

1. In the introduction, many parts have been used to discuss the general role of TikTok as a social media which do not match the title and the aim of the manuscript. To solve the problem, the author needs to focus on the main differences between using TikTok and applying other social media such as Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter in education.
2. To create a more effective manuscript, the author should re-organize the paragraphs and modify the headings in the literature review. The main reason is that some headings are overlapped. For example, some repetitive sentences (e.g., suicide) are shown in part 3 and 5 when the author identifies health problems. To solve this issue, I suggest that the author divide the advantages and disadvantages of applying TikTok as two main headings. Also, looking at review articles published in reputable journals may assist him/her in drawing Tables or providing an appropriate headings and subheadings.
3. A deep discussion is required to support the author's claim.
4. The objective, research questions, significance of the study, implementations, and limitations should be added.
5. Finally, as a review article, the author may provide more reliable resources to provide useful information about applying TikTok in a learning environment. As noted by another reviewer, more reputable citations are required to enhance the credibility of the manuscript.
