I enjoyed reading this article on Anthropogenic Biodiversity. This is certainly a neglected topic. The only thing I found missing in it was any reference to the extensive work of EK Janaki Ammal. Please note that she also published extensively in Current Science in the early part of the 20th century, and all of those are freely available online. I think she needs much more recognition in this country than she has been given so far. Maybe you can help correct this unfairness.
