The manuscript represents a method for the efficient household farming by using aquaponics system.

However, there are a few issues observed in the manuscript,

1. Authors have introduced the background of the aquaponics, and also of the various components of the system and its working.
2. There sections outline the different functionalities of the aquaponics and its working. Even though the explanation is self-explanatory but the authors need to structure these sections in a proper order so as to avoid confusions to the readers and to improve the readability of the manuscript.
3. This is creating a serious confusion to establish the work link presented in the manuscript.
4. Authors may merge or remove few of the sections for this.
5. The manuscript presents a strong theoretical background of the work while the results sections does not support it strongly. Authors need to focus on the results sections to make proper validation of the theoretical aspects considered.
6. Real life implementations of the proposed work will strengthen the suitability of the targeted work of the manuscript.
7. A proper proof reading is must for this manuscript. At many places the spelling and grammar errors are observed.
8. Overall the work is of a great importance and is very suitable for the modern day real life usage.
