The topic is interesting, but the study needs improvement. The title is too lengthy. This study has no information related to COVID-19 and its impact. The article should follow rules of academic writing. The introduction is too lengthy. It lacks the Discussion section. The analysis is too lengthy, with too many overcrowded tables. The same information is in the text, tables, and pie charts. Academic writing should be crisp and to the point rather than a lengthy repetition of the same information. The conclusion section is generalized; it is not presented in a systematic way. The research question, the objective of the study, and the conclusion must be aligned. Most of the references are too old. Nothing is added from the latest literature.
