

Review of: "How Competent are Health Professionals in Delivering Nutrition Education? A Cross-Sectional Study in Ebonyi State, Nigeria"

Víctor Martínez-Majolero<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Comillas Pontifical University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I believe that the topic addressed by the authors is of special relevance and interest to society on the development of health care. However, I consider that the introduction is not very well-founded in explaining why this research is necessary and what it is intended to contribute to this study. I also believe that they should include a contextualisation of the health professions in Nigeria and the professional competencies of each health profession.

I consider the sample of physiotherapists and dieticians and dentists to be insufficient to be able to extrapolate the results to the population.

It would be necessary to indicate the date of approval and the registration number of the approval of the ethics committee

Future lines of research remain to be included.

It would be advisable to review the bibliographical references