The article is well presented, with a clear and organized structure that effectively communicates its content. The authors have invested significant effort in ensuring the information is comprehensible to a wide readership. The language used in the article enhances its overall clarity and readability. Furthermore, the results obtained in the article have the potential to significantly impact the field of medicine, offering valuable insights and solutions to critical issues.

However, i have few suggestions:

Fig 1 needs more explanation within the present context.

"line of loess smoothing technique" needs to be "line of LOESS smoothing technique" for a better readability.
