

Review of: "Aerococcus urinae Endocarditis: An Emerging Infectious Disease"

Kehinde C. Mofolorunsho¹

¹ Kogi State University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The manuscript "Aerococcus urinae Endocarditis: An Emerging Infectious Disease" will serve to provide an important contribution to the public health importance of Aerococcus urinae. However, I have provided some feedback to strengthen this article.

First, what is the purpose of this research? This has to be clearly stated. Secondly, is this a case report or a review article? Authors have to be clear on what article type they intend for this paper. Authors should also follow strictly the guidelines for the selected article type. If authors decide on a review article, then they should include vital information such as their search strategy and inclusion/exclusion criteria. Note: Do not include a case report in a review article.

Overall, this manuscript has to be improved significantly. The introduction should provide information on the causative agent, the disease, its clinical manifestations, and the global situation/trends. It should be brief but comprehensive.