

Review of: "The Impact on People's Well-being of Utilizing Greenery in the Design of High-rise Residential Building Balconies"

Drini Berati

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The study investigates the impact of incorporating greenery on balconies on well-being, using a MANOVA methodology. The research is commendable for its lucidly defined objectives, thorough demographic scrutiny, and judicious application of statistical techniques, thereby fortifying its methodological underpinning. Refinement in articulating results and expanding the depth of discussion could augment scholarly contributions. Addressing these facets is essential to enhance the paper's scholarly merit and provide insightful nuances into the relevant domain.