

Review of: "How to burp an infant – a prospective comparative pilot study on four different methods"

Margreet Harskamp-van Ginkel¹

¹ Amsterdam UMC

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I read this article with great interest and I think it is relevant to investigate different burping techniques so we can give evidence based advices to parents. I learned that burping sitting up if most effective with a chinleft to the lower cheeckbone and advice this to parents. If you don't have a picture of the burping techniques during this study with you twins, it would be helpfull to make drawings or pictures with other newborns to visualize the techniques.

I agree with other reviewers that the age of the infants should be described as well