

Review of: "Proposal to Explain the Cause of Long COVID Based on the Concept of Host Factor Variants"

Yongjin Li¹

¹ Sun Yat-Sen University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is devoted to an important and very interesting topic for experts: explaining the cause of long COVID based on the Concept of Host Factor Variants, but the text of the paper needs minor revision.

The list of some remarks:

1. The keyword should be modified.
2. The abstract should be in the passive voice.
3. Could you show the main benefits of your research?
4. Proofreading is required to improve the presentation of the manuscript and correct typos.
5. The importance of the design carried out in this manuscript can be explained better than in other important studies published in this field. I recommend the authors review other recently developed works.
6. The conclusion of the paper is unclear, so rewrite the conclusion section and check the future directions of the study at the end of the conclusion section.