

Review of: "[Commentary] On Heated Tobacco Products and the Importance of Science-Based Assessments and Product Classification"

Teemu Kärkelä¹

¹ VTT Technical Research Centre of Finland

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I agree with the authors that data and results extracted from studies by other authors/organisations should be carefully presented in review articles to avoid misinterpretation of results. It is important to study the differences in smoke and aerosol from conventional cigarettes and HTPs, respectively, to learn about the possible exposure of consumers to the airborne constituents - as indicated in this commentary by the authors. All work aimed at reducing the releases and exposure to HPHCs is valuable.