This is well written and provides good rationale and a logical argument for undertaking the study, by identifying the gap in the literature. It provides some unique results although I did not scrutinise the statistics.

Just a couple of comments:

P5 - While there may high internet connectivity, it is not clear if certain sites on the Internet are restricted in some countries.

P15 – Re your statement ‘Countries with weak individualism often have smaller environmental impacts and fewer social problems’. This seems like a broad generalisation, so please review your sources to make sure that is accurate.
