

Review of: "Climate Change and Sustainability: A Comparative Case Study"

Agbemavor Korsi Fiagbe¹

¹ University of Ghana

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The analysis on climate change and sustainability should be anchored on clear theoretical perspectives whilst empirical studies on the subject are highlighted. The analysis should be properly motivated.

The comparative analysis between Sweden and India should be heavy on statistical performances of key variables in the subject matter. Statistics on variables such as poverty, growth, carbon emission, rates of adoption of clean energy among others could provide clear and convincing justification for the study.