Thank you for the updates article. The diagram adds a good visual to the process. Perhaps adding the number of articles/sources that were used to create this review would be helpful. In addition, from say, 200 sources/articles, you found only 150 were relevant, and then upon reading the 150, you found that only 75 truly contributed to the review would be helpful. In reviews, we generally examine X number of abstracts, then go from there. Keep in mind that relevance, date, currency, and sources are important. Keep up the work!
