

Review of: "Paulian Approach to Critical Thinking: Assessing an Intervention Program"

Roelien Goede¹

¹ North West University South Africa

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The topic of the paper is important and current. The theoretical base of the paper requires refinement. The author did not provide enough description of what Critical Thinking entails. Without a clear (although brief) discussion of Paul's model it is impossible to verify the research process. If Paul's model is the theoretical framework, the paper should strive to contribute to the body of knowledge about the model. This contribution requires more discussion. The findings should be linked more explicitly to the theoretical model used.