Generally, the paper is of good quality yet needs a few changes. The article is alluring and significant, yet the proclamation of the issue isn't adequately clear. In the introduction part, the sources have been checked on something over the top, while the results of different examinations ought to be summed up, and the significance and need of the subject ought to be obviously stated. Needs more discussion about the quality of life and wellbeing of experts in the introduction. Work on the results and discussion. Add future research directions for the next researcher. I strongly recommend publishing this paper after these minor changes.
