

Review of: "Neutronic Chain Reactions for Polonium-210 Production"

Sandhya Prabeesh¹

¹ University of Kerala

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare

The paper is very impressive. It is written in a clear and understandable manner, making complex concepts accessible to a wide audience. The research is thorough and well- documented, with robust methods and data analysis. The paper presents innovative findings that contribute significantly to the field, understanding an important research gap. The authors' conclusion are well supported by their results. and they provide practical implications for further studies