

Review of: "Knowledge, Perception and Challenges of Implementing Nutrition Screening: A Survey of Healthcare Professionals"

Cunha Daniel¹

¹ Escola Superior de Enfermagem de Santa Maria

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Firstly, I think the subject is very topical and relevant.

However, it would be important for the authors to describe who the health professionals are, in the context of the study, responsible for carrying out nutritional screening and including only these professionals in the research.

The methodology should contain more information, such as the population and the sampling method (present in the study instruments), the method of analysing the open-ended questions, and other details.

Completely in agreement with the study's limitations.