

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Dermoodontodysplasia

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base.

Dermoodontodysplasia. ORPHA:1660

Dermo-odonto dysplasia belongs to the group of tricho-odonto-onychial dysplasias. It is characterised by signs of variable severity: dry and thin skin, dental anomalies, nail alteration and trichodysplasia. Fourteen cases have been described so far. Autosomal dominant transmission is likely.