This is a very well researched article that highlights specific challenges of mental health in the region. The approach to reflection is good and as this is my area of interest, it would be great to have more details of how the collaborative process to bring the different perspectives together was completed. There are some references missing (1) from the reference list and (2) in the list that are not cited but this is a small issue. The inclusion of the student voices is a strength and should be commended.
