Thank you for the opportunity to review this interesting paper.

I believe that this paper must be updated for all references. The resources are too obsolete and lack updates on the main topic.

In the paragraph "Background of research on motivation and academic performance," the author included statistical data, but this choice is too difficult to follow for the reader. I suggest eliminating the statistical results and translating the empirical evidence in a more readable way.

For discussion and future implications, I suggest implementing the indications by the author. It is very superficial and too poor.
