Review of: "Identifying Psychological Distress Patterns during the COVID-19 Pandemic using an Intersectional Lens"

Shruti Jaiswal

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is well organized with very thoughtful ideation of bringing consciousness from AI, backed with some background into bringing consciousness with neurons.

But the paper lacks the experimental details and hence looks a little far from reality.

Improvement areas: some sort of experimentation can be added to back the concept and make it more realistic.