

Review of: "Tomatoes Unveiled: A Comprehensive Exploration from Cultivation to Culinary and Nutritional Significance"

Sabyasachi Banerjee

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

After carefully reading, I will suggest that it still looks like a summary, not a review/mini-review. The topics chosen by the authors are quite interesting, but I am still disappointed with the content in it, though it has been improved to some extent. It could be more elaborative, and sufficient data is needed to improve the quality of the manuscript. Several excellent reviews are available on the internet; authors should go through those. It still needs revision as it seeks more research to be included in each section. I will suggest the authors modify the entire manuscript in detail, and they have to be very careful during writing to avoid grammatical errors, as this one is having many grammatical errors in it.