The main concern of the manuscript is the lack of statistical analysis. The authors reach management recommendations based on a description of the results, without any significant results. Also, there are no variations reported for the data set, making it not possible to infer the variation in the data in order to compare the three study cases. Further, case 1 and case 2 are strictly the same case; it is not possible to analyse them as separated cases, so they will be considered as pseudo replication.

I am not an English native speaker, but I would reconsider the grammar of the manuscript; for example, "Comparing and comparing with some" is an incorrect sentence.
