

Review of: "Tourists' Activities and their Impacts on Chinhoyi Caves Heritage Site, Zimbabwe"

Umaporn Muneenam¹

¹ Prince of Songkla University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This was a good article from Zimbabwe that readers will learn tourists' activities, and their positive and negative impacts to the Chinhoyi caves, as well as recent recommendations for reducing negative impacts. However, these would be better if authors also present information of Chinhoyi caves too such as heritage site history and background, statistics of tourists, seasons for travelling here, entrance fee, instruction for tourists who travelling here, as well as discuss with similar cave (heritage site such as cave in Malta). In addition, information about lists of interviewees presented in table (tour guides, tourists, date of interviews), picture of graffiti on the cave, summarise table of positive and negative impacts (economical, cultural & societal, biological, and environmental impacts), proper quotations and citations format for in-depth interviews. More discussion with similar relevant context are needed.