The topic is interesting but needs a lot of improvement.

The introduction needs to be improved; it should include the framework, objectives, and structure of the article.

A section with a literature review is needed.

The methodology needs to be improved: better explain how many interviews, to whom, and what type of analysis.

You should show how you analysed the interviews and how you did it.

Conclusions should include limitations and avenues for further research, as well as articulating the references with your results.
