

Review of: "Sustainable Equity Discrimination in Asset Liability Management for Practitioners: A Practical Approach"

Laura Vasilescu¹

¹ University of Craiova

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article presents an interesting topic regarding the integration of sustainability criteria into investment strategies, using a two-step approach tailored to include leveraging publicly available sustainability data (through clustering techniques) and the Markowitz methodology.

There are some suggestions for revisions that should be considered:

- The literature review section is missing; there are some scientific papers included in the introduction section, but the various approaches related to the study should be presented more detailed;
- A more clear and continuous style should be considered in the analysis of the main aspects from the introduction and formulation of the research questions to the results and conclusion parts;
- The presentation of statistical graphs should be improved, and the explanations should be detailed accordingly with the methods relevant for the research study;
- The bibliography should be updated and enriched with some recent research in the field.