I have reviewed the document and it is correct, easy to read and clear.

However, I would check some references to use the first descriptions of the virus, isolation, and diagnosis. The article of Ho M et al (that you refer in your work) is interesting, and can help you to find more references concerning this point.

Another point to improve is the clinical findings - I suggest you to separate into mother-fetus infection; congenital infection, child and adult infection. I think you could give more information about these situations. Congenital infection is a serious health problem, but meningoencephalitis in older children is also important. I would suggest you to write more about this point and link the treatment with these findings (do not cite only the drugs, but in which situation the patient will be treated).
