The article is well-written, to the point, and justifies the topic. Upon justifying or implementing a few corrections, I think the article is ready to go.

- The last five lines of the abstract seem to fade the effectiveness of the entire abstract. Try to refine them in a scientific way.
- "The virus that causes COVID-19 is still unknown to us," - This statement should be removed.
- Table 1 needs an update. There is plenty of data available in the public domain.
- If possible, please try to add more information from the recent experimental data.
- Overall grammatical and technical corrections are required.
