The article try to give a brief account on Factors Influencing Youth Drug Abuse. Although authors tried to identify risk factors from review, article does not provide satisfactory scientific validity of results. In methodology several gaps were identified including article selection for review process. Manuscript mainly included information derived from very few articles, hence diversity of information is minimum. Moreover, findings from review just presented in point form without scientific evidence(no statistical evidence) through out the paper. Authors had missed recently publish research findings limiting getting recent research findings related to the area of interest. Conclusion and recommendation does not seems to derive from the findings of the study. Overall, the article has failed to provide a comprehensive account on Factors Influencing Youth Drug Abuse with scientific evidence with its inadequate methodology and unsatisfactory scientific writing. However, authors can improve the article by addressing given comments.
