The article is interesting and current. The introduction highlights the importance of the study and has a good bibliographic review on the topic of nutritional status. The objective of the study is understood. However, it is not clearly explained how the dietary intake patterns were evaluated, although it indicates that with the 24-hour reminder, and mentions a score, there is no literature on this score, which does not allow us to identify which questionnaire was used. . Nor is it specified about some demographic variables such as: employment, unemployment, vaccination, occupation. Other feeding pattern variables are not specified either. I think that by improving these aspects the results will be better understood.
